Community Integration Program Missy Armstrong, Sara Lauzen
The Community Integration Program (CIP) contains a set of testing tools and treatment activities for getting your patients back into the community. The program was originally developed for the Rehab Program at the Harborview Medical Center in Seattle, and then broadened in scope to include other patient populations including psych, burn, adolescent, neuro, and MR/DD. There are over 20 modules to make sure that your patient understands community safety, emergency preparedness, how to see cultural events, how to shop or go to a restaurant, how to travel (inside the city, across the nation, and outside the country), and much more. Forms for running the programs are included, and you can copy them for your therapy programs. The forms include initial screening, pretest, field trial, posttest, and chart notes.
