These moments of thinking about the past in a positive way give us a good feeling, and have been named ‘gratitude.’ Feeling grateful just happens sometimes, but you can make a special effort to increase how often you feel it by writing it down in the gratitude journal. It’s been proven that shifting your focus to the positive can significantly improve your happiness. The key is consistency. This journal has been created by combining the proven elements of positive psychology that can make all of the difference in your life. Happiness Tracker Many people want to improve their level of happiness. Once you've settled on a number (From 1-10), consider what it is about your life that makes it wonderful, so-so, or lousy. What are the factors that contribute and detract from your well being? It's good to know exactly what helps to keep you on track. Another great thing about the happiness tracker is that you can check your pass journal entries, then you will notice if your overall happiness has improved or not. How to use this Journal? Choose a time of day when you have several minutes to step outside your life and to reflect. It is best to write on it first thing in the morning, and last thing before bedtime. Think of two to three things for which you are currently grateful, from the mundane (your car is fixed, your flowers are finally in bloom, your husband remembered to take the trash out) to the magnificent (your child’s first steps, the beauty of the sky during sunset). Don’t forget specific individuals who care for you, have made contributions to or sacrifices for you, or somehow touch your life. Doing this once a day will boost your happiness, and that’s my recommendation on how you use this journal. You will find “The Gratitude Journal” to be a great way to start and end the day. Get grateful. Start focusing on what is positive in your life. Scroll to the top and select the "BUY" button for the paperback version.
