Length: Super novel (96,751 words)

When you're a dutiful, dependable and desperate woman... sometimes falling into the arms of a gorgeous rakehell really is the only way out. Better yet, make that three gorgeous rakehells...

Fortuna Allenthorpe is so repulsed by the man to whom she's become engaged that she flees into the night with notorious rakehell, Giles Dovecote. Giles is a vocal advocate of free love, and he and his debauched friends the Darleston twins, are soon vying for Fortuna's attention while introducing her to all manner of sexual delights.

Convinced that her tattered reputation will prompt her fiancé to call off the engagement, Fortuna is troubled to learn that Sir Hector is still set upon their marriage. It seems he's more interested in her impressive inheritance, a ruby necklace known as the Star of Fortune, than he is in her errant virtue. What's more, he's prepared to destroy her family to ensure he gets exactly what he wants.

Suddenly, Fortuna's only means of escape is to make a more agreeable match. How difficult can that be, when she's head over heels for Giles, and he's already sworn to help her? There's just one problem--Giles's deep-rooted belief that marriage is nothing more than social slavery. Past mistakes weight heavily on his conscience, but can he really sit back and condemn the woman he loves to a hellish match?
