What's Happening in Our Schools? Ronald L. Lien
>What s Happening in Our Schools? is written to help the general public, those interested in entering the profession, and experienced teachers preparing to engage in the transformation of education contribute to its success. Dr. Ronald Lien introduces the reader to the parameters that guide educators and then to the technology that has made the transformation of education feasible. In the latter chapters, he describes the transformation taking place currently in many large and wealthy school districts. The book will be especially helpful to school board members and young adults contemplating entering the education profession, but all citizens can benefit because Dr. Lien addresses major issues raised by critics of the education institution, doing so in a manner that reflects his extended service in both education and corporate environments.
